

A Sand County Almanac (Preview)

and Sketches Here and There

Aldo Leopold

1949

THERE are some who can live without wild things, and some who cannot. These essays are the delights and dilemmas of one who cannot.

Like winds and sunsets, wild things were taken for granted until progress began to do away with them. Now we face the question whether a still higher 'standard of living' is worth its cost in things natural, wild, and free. For us of the minority, the opportunity to see geese is more important than television, and the chance to find a pasque-flower is a right as inalienable as free speech.

These wild things, I admit, had little human value until mechanization assured us of a good breakfast, and until science disclosed the drama of where they come from and how they live. The whole conflict thus boils down to a question of degree. We of the minority see a law of diminishing returns in progress; our opponents do not.

The Ted K Archive

Aldo Leopold
A Sand County Almanac (Preview)
and Sketches Here and There 1949

<www.aldoleopold.org/products/a-sand-county-almanac>

Thanks to the Aldo Leopold Foundation supporting the use of passages from A Sand County Almanac published by Oxford University Press.

ISBN 0195007778, 9780195007770

Oxford University Press

www.thetedkarchive.com