

Smith floaters find old cache

Associated Press

June 25, 1987

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS (AP) - A party of floaters on the Smith River has found one of the caches left by Scotty Allen, a hermit-like trapper who lived in the Smith River country for more than four decades before his death earlier this year.

Allen's main base was a cabin on Tenderfoot Creek, a tributary of the Smith, but he kept caches of food and clothing all along the river.

Members of the Montana State University cross-country ski team were floating the river when they discovered some parachute string leading to the cache, said Greg Johnson of Bozeman, a member of the party.

Allen's cache included a 1938 Illinois Herb Almanac and a 1942 Jehovah's Witnesses yearbook and four 1938 $1 silver certificates.

Smith floaters find old cache

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS (AP) — A party of floaters on the Smith River has found one of the caches left by Scotty Allen, a hermit-like trapper who lived in the Smith River country for more than four decades before his death earlier this year.

Allen's main base was a cabin on Tenderfoot Creek, a tributary of the Smith, but he kept caches of food and clothing all along the river.

Members of the Montana State University cross-country ski team were floating the river when they discovered some parachute string leading to the cache, said Greg Johnson of Bozeman, a member of the party.

Allen's cache included a 1938 Illinois Herb Almanac and a 1942 Jehovah's Witnesses yearbook and four 1938 $1 silver certificates.

The Ted K Archive

Associated Press
Smith floaters find old cache
June 25, 1987

The Independent-Record (Helena, Montana), June 25, 1987, page 10.
<www.newspapers.com>

www.thetedkarchive.com