Summary	Science Magazine January 19,1973 Article requested by Ted via Lewis & Clark Library interlibrary loan on $03/11/1988$.
	Author writes about if sanity and insanity exsist, how shall we know them? How what is viewed as normal in one culture may be seen as quite aberrant in another.
	This article is an experiment of whether sane can be distinguished from the insane (and whether degrees of insanity can be distinguished from each other) This article describes such an experiment. Eight sane people gained secret admission to 12 different hospitals. This experiment covers their diagnostic experiences as well as their description of experiences in psychiatric institutions.

Summary	Personality in Twins Reared Apart and Together by Tellegen, Lykken, Bouchard, Wilcox, Segal & Rich. Until recently, almost all knowledge regarding environ-

	Particularly puzzling, and contrary to

Summary	Skeptical Inquirer Winter 1987–88 vol-mean to say that something is "subliminal" or that it is "below threshold?" Does it mean that something is below the limits of concious perception?"(lt does not!).

	A large body of research shows that the less likely we are to hear a given sound, the less likely it is to influence our behavior: even behavior as simple as saying, "Yes, I heard it." How much less likely that such a sound, can exert powerful or mysterious influences over us, as is claimed by proponents of subliminal influences!

Summary	Minnesota Study of Twins Reared Apart
	by Bouchard, Lykken, McGue, Segal, Tel-Monozygotic and dizygotic twins separated at infancy and reared apart, has subjected more than 100 sets of reared-apart twins or triplets to a week of intensessment. Like the prior, smaller studies 70% of the variance in IQ was found to be associated with genetic variation. The study focuses on the hypothesis that genetic differences affect psychological differences largely indirectly, by influencing the effective environment of the develop-heritability of most psychological traits, sensibly construed, does not detract from the value or importance of parenting, ed-

Summary	The belief that advertisements contain hidden sexual and demonic images is widely held even though no evidence exists that such images are used or that they would be effective if they were.
	Creed analyzes Wilson Bryan Key's lec-harmful in that he provides misinformation that in turn misdirects attention and promotes simplistic thinking. Key's thesis is that the "unconscious brain" perceives everything instantaneously as well as his conspirators/victims dichotomy reinforces a student's desire for simple explanations to complex thinking to retreat from the complexity of their college coursework to the comfort of right vs. wrong and obtaining certainty from authority.

Three Short Novels

Author:	Joseph Conrad
Language:	English Category: Fiction
Publisher:	Bantam Books, Inc. Year of 1963
Origin:	Unknown Publication:
Lab Number	K2019-4
Agent/Analyst:	Wren
Summary	Three Short Novels include Heart of Darkness, Youth, and Typhoon. In Heart of Darkness, is the story of the dissolution of a man and the system he stands for. The man is Kurtz, an ivory trader with a mission, and the system is the system of shameless exploitation which certain European powers imposed upon Africa. Youth is an odds-against story, the author early warns that the little 400-ton ship has only a slim chance of reaching her final destination. Typhoon takes place in the China Sea and when it hits, the demonic force of wind and water is horriffic. The storm is the protagonist and the story evolves as we watch its effect upon its victims.
