Industrial Society and Its Future

Draft versions (pre-June 1995)

Ted didn't name all the authors influencing his writing of the manifesto as "he had sent letters (in his own name, without bombs) to the authors he admired, and he feared that citing them would provide leads for the FBI." But they are archived at the Uni. of Michigan.

Truth versus Lies

Original Draft

Misses out appendices and updates Ted wrote later:

- Truth Versus Lies (Original Draft)

Context Books Copy

Includes some updates and appendices Ted wanted. But lawyers toned down some of the language due to libel fears and deleted parts out of copyright fears. The book was stopped mid-printing and the publisher went out of business not long after:

- Truth versus Lies (Context Books Copy)

Volunteers Draft

Used the original draft as a basis, but included some updates and appendices we know Ted wanted from his correspondence with the publisher.

Abbreviated names have been replaced with real names based on Envelope X, since it's often over 50 years since many of the events transpired.

Plus, secondary footnotes have been added for clarity and to mark where various people's names are first mentioned:
